VOGUEWALL™ WITH ALUMINIUM POSTS COMPLETES BACKYARD MAKEOVER

Brad Roberts of Engadine, NSW, recently completed a 7-year backyard makeover. As part of the complete overhaul, an old brushwood fence was replaced with our VogueWall, with aluminium posts utilised for a subtler post profile, perfectly framing the brand new outdoor space.

We were lucky enough to get in touch with Brad to chat about this amazing transformation and find out how he found the experience.

When did you begin your backyard transformation?

The transformation of our backyard has been an ongoing process for a number of years. It all started about 7 years ago when we decided to rejuvenate the pool, replace the old brick pavers and coping around the pool and transform an unused space into the area you see in the photo. The latest transformation was to replace an old-fashioned brushwood fence and gate with the new VogueWall modular wall.

What guided you to choose a modular wall system?

We researched walls to replace the old brushwood fence and looked at different alternatives, and finally decided on the modular wall because of looks, cost, ease of maintenance and the attitude of the young guy who came to quote. The VogueWall was cheaper than other alternatives we looked at and because of the render-look finish, we felt it fitted in better with the finish of our rendered house. It only took a couple of days to install and we painted it with the same acrylic exterior paint used on the house.

Are you happy with the final result?

Very! The entire experience was excellent. The young bloke who installed it was really nice and his team were very pleasant – good tradies, and they tidied up when they finished each day!
